Retired Regimental Colours

The Kirk in 1922 accepted the retired regimental colours of the PEI Regiment for safekeeping, which included ensuring they remained on public display. Session has obtained an acceptable price on building a case to display the colours within the Kirk. The colours are on a temporary table in the Somers Chapel (north side of the chancel) and the Kirk Heritage Committee is attempting to locate a suitable space so that the Somers Chapel can be utilized once again as a memorial chapel. The case will measure 46" x 109" and stand 36" tall at the front and 48" at back. Due to their fragile condition, the colours can't be displayed vertically, or hung against a wall. As the proposed case is not small, there are limited options within the sanctuary to place it. It was thought that the congregation should be advised on a proposed location within the Prowse Memorial (south side of the chancel), and asked for feedback. Masking tape lines have been placed on the carpet in the proposed area. If congregation members wish to comment on this proposal, or wish additional information, they could contact Ian Scott, for the Kirk Heritage Committee, by email at scotts@pei.sympatico.ca or 902-892-5796.
